Introduction

Goodwill Industries International and Rotary International have a mutual interest in helping people around the world find and keep good jobs, and share a commitment to creating and expanding opportunities for steady jobs and reliable incomes for people who have trouble finding or keeping jobs.

The cooperative relationship between Rotary International and Goodwill Industries® allows the organizations to collaborate and combine resources so that more people with disabilities and those having a hard time finding employment can obtain job training and employment services. Rotary and Goodwill® recognize the power of work and the critical role of employment and training — both in building individual self-confidence, personal empowerment, and financial stability, and in strengthening local communities and broad-based economies.

Who We Are

Goodwill Industries International is a network of 183 community-based, independent member organizations in the United States, Canada and 13 other countries. Goodwill's mission is to provide job-training programs for people who have physical, mental, or emotional disabilities; people who lack education or job experience; and anyone else having a hard time finding employment. Each member organization serves these populations by providing education and career services, as well as job placement opportunities and post-employment support. To pay for its programs, Goodwill sells donated clothes and other household items in more than 2,300 retail stores and online at shopgoodwill.com. Through its services, the network helps people who are having a hard time finding employment become independent, tax-paying members of their communities. Goodwill channels 84 percent of its revenues directly into its programs and services. For more information, visit www.goodwill.org.

Rotary International is a worldwide organization of service clubs with more than 1.2 million business, professional and community leaders as its members. Known as Rotarians, these volunteers provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations, and help build goodwill and peace in the world. There are 33,000 Rotary clubs in more than 200 countries and geographical areas. Rotary clubs are nonpolitical, nonreligious, and open to all cultures, races, and creeds. For more information, visit www.rotary.org.

How can my Rotary club or district get involved?

An individual Rotary club or district can collaborate with Goodwill on a project that meets the needs of the local community. Included below is a sampling of various Rotary–Goodwill projects that offer a glimpse of the types of activities that are currently being implemented; however, Rotary clubs and Goodwills are not limited to the projects listed here. Local Rotary–Goodwill associations are encouraged to be creative and adapt projects accordingly.

Job Readiness and Career Opportunities

When someone is having a hard time finding a job, Goodwill is there to help. Goodwill provides job-training programs, employment placement services and other community-based programs in the United States and Canada. Each Goodwill agency is independent and has its own specific procedure for people who walk into Goodwill looking for a job. Usually, someone on the workforce development staff or a career counselor will ask individuals about their backgrounds, education, work experience, any skills they have (such as computer or customer services skills), and what their job interests are or what they'd like to do. Based on that information, the staff member will recommend the Goodwill job-training programs suitable for each individual. Sometimes, the staff member will even have specific jobs in mind based on the individual's experiences. Examples of how Rotary clubs can collaborate with Goodwill agencies include:

- Interview readiness: The Rotary Club of Tucson (Arizona) and Goodwill Industries of Southern Arizona conduct mock interviews with students to provide them with in-person feedback, suggestions for improvement and information on employer expectations.
- Recruiting: Goodwill Industries of Kentucky (Louisville) has the Bluegrass Work Acceleration Program, in which local employers hire Goodwill trainees and graduates, as well as adults lacking their high school credentials. During the employment period, those lacking a high school diploma or general educational development (GED) certificate will study for the GED and, when workers complete their GED, employers hire them full-time.
- Job training: The Rotary Club of St. Matthews (Louisville) provides operating support to Goodwill Industries of Kentucky's adult learning center. The Rotary Club of Columbia Valley Daybreak (Kennewick, WA) helped Goodwill Industries of the Columbia trainees get experience with the Kennewick police records department.
- Internships: Business partners can consider Goodwill applicants for either paid or unpaid internship programs, which provide work experience opportunities for individuals enrolled in Goodwill programs.
- Career fairs: Rotarians in Macon, GA, organize job fairs with local Goodwill Career Centers and facilitate career workshops.
- Job shadowing: Rotarians can develop job-shadowing opportunities for participants at local employers to get an up-front perspective of a specific job.

Donation Drives

Goodwill agencies are innovative and sustainable social enterprises that fund job training, employment placement services and other community programs by selling donated clothes and household items at Goodwill retail stores and online, and through contract services, private and public grants, and individual giving. Contact Goodwill to work with your school or business and launch a donation drive such as those listed below.

- Clothing and textile donations: The Rotary Club of East Portland (Oregon) and Goodwill Industries of the Columbia Willamette team up for Good Turn Day, during which people go door-to-door collecting donated clothing and other items.
- Clothing donations: The Rotary Club of Tucson and Goodwill Industries of Southern Arizona team up each spring and fall for Closet Cleaning Day. Rotarians bring their gently worn clothing to their weekly club meeting, and Goodwill staff members haul the donations to Goodwill retail stores. This program is a convenient way to collect high-quality donations.
- Vehicle donations: The Rotary Club of Hamilton A.M. (Ontario, Canada) donated a 12-passenger van to Goodwill The Amity Group to transport participants to and from Goodwill Works, a career and training program. (A photograph of the van can be found on the first page of this toolkit.)
- Electronic donations: Rotary clubs can donate their electronics to local Goodwills, which accept and sort donated computers and computer equipment through the Dell Reconnect program. Dell's product recovery partner then recycles and remarkets the materials, including plastics, glass and metals. Proceeds from the sold materials benefit Goodwill's programs and services.

Family Strengthening

Goodwill believes in and embraces the concept of family strengthening. For more than 100 years, Goodwill has strived to empower people with disadvantages and disabilities to gain the knowledge and skills necessary to achieve economic self-sufficiency and improve their lives and the lives of their children. The family strengthening philosophy permeates how Goodwill does business. By adopting a focus on family needs, Goodwill is able to help people address issues proactively before they can influence work. The result is that participants can better focus on employment and career goals once home conditions are stable. With its family strengthening philosophy, Goodwill is able to support people as they move from poverty to economic self-sufficiency. Examples of how Rotarians can assist Goodwills with their family strengthening needs include:

- Scholarships: In Alabama, the Rotary Club of Mobile works with Goodwill Easter Seals of the Gulf Coast to cover tuition and transportation so that 100 children and adults with disabilities can attend Camp ASCCA (Alabama's Special Camp for Children and Adults), a weeklong recreation and education experience.
- Financial literacy: Like Goodwill program participants, many Goodwill employees have difficulty managing their finances and obtaining affordable access to financing. Rotarians can share their expertise on the basics of financial planning, buying a home, balancing a checkbook or investing in a 401(k).

Support Goodwill

Goodwill trains people for careers in fields such as financial services, computer programming, and health care, as well as in emerging industries. Rotary and Goodwill can continue to strengthen communities and families and promote independence and dignity for people who need it most by pooling resources in the areas of grant funding, fund raising and financial contributions. Examples of current best practices and opportunities for collaboration include:

- Purchasing from Goodwill: Rotarians can purchase new and like-new merchandise from Goodwill stores. Goodwill stores receive a good mixture of items daily, including automotive items, grills, furniture, clothing, electronics and other products.
- Using Goodwill contract services: Goodwill's contract services provide a valuable service for area businesses that need assistance to meet seasonal demands, for ongoing production, to bring a new product to market, and/or to occasionally rework either at their place of business or at another area facility. Rotarians who know of businesses in need of a contract consultation should contact Goodwill Industries International.
- Special events: Rotarians can hold banquets, picnics, holiday parties or other events to raise funds for Goodwill programs.
- Grants: Goodwill of Central Arizona receives an annual grant from the Rotary Club of Phoenix that helps support youth and family services programs.
- Financial support: Goodwill Industries of Central Virginia received a donation of $10,000 from the Rotary Club of Richmond to refurbish its fleet of trucks. The Rotary Club of Los Angeles has contributed nearly $250,000 to Goodwill Industries of Southern California to support its programs and services.

Community Awareness

Rotary clubs can continue to help raise awareness about Goodwill's mission, enhance Goodwill's brand image, and generate visibility and resources for Goodwill agencies in local communities. Rotary International encourages clubs and districts to share their successful projects with its staff by e-mailing programs@rotary.org or submitting them as model projects on Rotary's ProjectLINK database, www.rotary.org/projectlink. Examples of how Rotarians are currently raising awareness and suggestions for additional efforts include:

- Outreach: Goodwill of Greater Washington (DC) launched a "Get to Know Goodwill" tour, during which Goodwill staff members coordinate with more than 10 local Rotary clubs throughout the DC-metropolitan area to visit volunteer and civic groups, chambers of commerce and others identified by local Rotary clubs to share information about the transformational power of Goodwill.
- Service awards: Rotary clubs can join Goodwill in organizing a recognition event. Goodwill Industries of Akron (Ohio) offers area employers an opportunity to recognize stellar employees through Goodwill's Employee of Distinction Award luncheons. Employers can nominate the employees that they wish to be publicly recognized. Rotary clubs can assist Goodwill with informing local employers about this opportunity for recognition and appreciation.
- Meetings: Rotary clubs can hold their meetings at local Goodwill offices.
- Social events: Rotarians can chaperone program participant field trips to sporting events, movies, concerts, libraries, or museums, or help celebrate participant birthdays, accomplishments, etc.
- Service projects: Rotary clubs can organize one-day service activities to raise awareness, such as establishing community gardens, donation drives, construction projects to make buildings wheelchair accessible, extreme makeover projects, and murals.
- Promotion: Rotary clubs and districts can promote the Goodwill mission at Rotary gatherings and meetings of other interested groups.

Volunteerism/Community Partnerships

People from all walks of life can help to make a difference at the Goodwill in their communities. Here are a few ways:

- Child literacy: Goodwill Industries of Middle Georgia and the CSRA (Macon) has a collaborative partnership with Cox Communications and the Rotary Club of Downtown Macon called the Reading Adventure program, in which Rotarians volunteer their time at the Good Books Café to read to school children, educate them about Goodwill, and provide them with books, school supplies, and nutritious snacks.
- Mentoring: Goodwills are in need of volunteers to mentor youth.
- Tax preparation: Goodwill is supporting an effort to help workers who earn low wages save money. Goodwill Industries is partnering with the Internal Revenue Service to offer Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) sites nationwide in order to provide free tax preparation to workers with low incomes and individuals with disabilities, among others. Through its partnership with the IRS and financial literacy programs, Goodwill Industries promotes the Earned Income Tax Credit, which gives tax breaks to working people who earn low or moderate incomes, whether single or married — as much as $4,824 in refunds for some families. Goodwills that operate VITA sites are in need of volunteers; training will be provided.
- Partnerships: Goodwill Industries of Central Virginia (Richmond) provides collection, workspace, storage and distribution support for a local Rotary program that collects and refurbishes used bicycles during the fall. The refurbished bikes are given to children who may not receive gifts at Christmas through Sgt. Santa, a local charity. Rotarians volunteer their time and expertise on Saturdays to clean and repair bikes. This program has provided more than 2,000 bikes since it became a joint effort.
- Boards: Many Rotarians serve as board members or advisers to Goodwills.
